ABSTRACT

Kila Raipur; a village of Ludhiana district in Punjab is well known for its rural sports festival called ‘Rural Olympics’. Purpose of the present study was to explore the salient features of this famous rural sports festival that has its origin in pre independence era. Grewals of this village has played a significant role to organize this sports festival successfully since its inception. Grewals are the descendents of Chandel Rajputs, the ruler of Budhel Khand, and comes in most educated classes among the Jatts of Punjab. In July 1934, the first sports meet was organized including volleyball, Kabaddi and a few athletic events. Since then it has been organizing as the annual rural sports meet. Information for this study was collected from primary and secondary sources. In 1934 this sports festival was started with few events and only local athletes took part in athletic events, but now it has become the competition arena of national and international athletes. Many eminent sports personalities have participated here including Gurbachan Singh Randhawa, Parveen Kumar and many more.

INTRODUCTION:

Festivals, mirthful or joyous celebrations, have been considered an important part of human life among all nations and in all ages. Many festivals including those of Olympic Games were regular features among the ancient Greeks, Saturnalia and Luper Colia were the important Roman festivals in which the Romans amused themselves and engaged themselves in games. It was customary among the ancient Greeks to suspend wars during the period of the Olympic Games so as to provide safe travel and transport to the participants and spectators from different states to the venue of the festival. This shows the high esteem in which the festivals were held.

According to American Educator Encyclopedia, “festivals or feasts are certain days or periods set apart for the celebration of some events”. These days, therefore, may be said to be a period to enjoy and make merry.

History of Games and sports in India, Indian Mirror says, has a rich heritage. In the Indus valley civilization, people were much civilized and health conscious. They had swimming pools and perhaps indulged in water sports. People engaged themselves in different types of recreational activities using marbles, balls and dice of different shapes (Reet Howell, 1994).
Punjab is called the land of fairs and festivals. Almost every type of fair is held in the Punjab. Most of these fairs and festivals are held in rural areas. It shows the special need of rural people for such gatherings. Nijjar (1968) says ‘Fairs and festivals were very fairs and common with the rural people of Punjab’. Many of these are largely attended by the people from every walk of life. People of Punjab select certain spots for their meetings on certain occasions.

Almost seventy four years ago when people of Kila Raipur began to hold competitions in rural sports, none would have thought that this tournament will became a ‘movement’ in the Punjab. Now it has become the most popular village sports festival in India. This festival represents a great spirit of games and Punjabi culture.
